

Log Line: That's Why You Never Drink Red

Three single women and three single men, the perfect set up for romantic sparks. Or not. Where will it get ugliest, at the table - or in the ladies' room?

Synopsis

Facing three Mr. Wrongs at a matchmaking dinner are Gwen, a free spirit looking for a good time, Heather, a young lawyer who sees the world as her courtroom, and Kelly, a tough-talking cop. They think things are bad at the table, but when they retreat to the ladies' room, they have to face each other.

Heather's ready to bolt—maybe she can salvage her Saturday with a video and a pint of low-fat ice cream. If she gets the others to walk out with her, the move becomes a statement instead of a hint at personal failure. Gwen, however, has picked a beau for the night, but with her blouse soaked with spilled wine, she's going to need help getting the night back on track. Enlisting Kelly and Heather, mired in their own professional rivalry and personal dislike, will be no easy task.
